Details

1. Overview of Health Company Declaration (Excellent Health Company Certification System)

The Health Company Declaration (Excellent Health Company Certification System) certifies enterprises that declare a companywide effort to promote health and that have achieved a certain degree of progress. It has two certification levels, silver and gold, according to initiatives for health-oriented management.

For a Step 1 silver certificate, an enterprise is required to declare that it will ensure that all employees undergo health checkups, in addition to declaring its work on the following six initiatives for no less than six months: (1) use of health checkup results, (2) development of an environment for promoting health, (3) diet, (4) exercise, (5) cessation of smoking, and (6) mental health. When the results of screening satisfy the standards, the enterprise will receive silver certificate as an Excellent Health Company.

For a Step 2 gold certificate, an enterprise is required to declare its work on the following six initiatives for no less than six months: (1) health checkups and prevention of worsening, (2) health management and safety and health activities, (3) measures for mental health, (4) prevention of excessive work, (5) measures for prevention of infections, and (6) health-oriented management. When the results of screening satisfy the standards, the enterprise will receive a gold certificate as an Excellent Health Company.
